FIFTEENTH SUNDAY OF ORDINARY TIME: After Jesus' unfortunate experience last week in his hometown, he sends his disciples out to preach, cast out demons and heal the sick. Jesus instructs the apostles not to be weighed down by baggage or by others' acceptance of their message. The mission was an instruction to continue Jesus' ministry of healing the mind, body and soul. Today God continues to plan for humankind with his beloved creation; we are each meant to belong to God through Christ. We are sealed to God in the Spirit through Christ. It does not matter where we are on our faith journey. Neither does our state in life or our chosen life's profession matter. Jesus sends us forth in mission from this unique point in time and our unique place in the world to preach repentance and bring life to others. As Jesus sends his disciples out to unknown territory, he tells them to trust and to live simply. This is true for us even today as we live the Christian faith passed down to us from our families.
